ROAD NOW.

The enterprising citizens, those who make the old town move, want waterworks and must have them in order to place themselves in an equal footing with other towns.

It was only Saturday we were in Shelbyville, one of our old-time towns, which is in close proximity with Louisville, our great metropolis, and had expected to see the sameness of years past, because of the sapping influences of the great city; but instead of this, to our surprise, we looked out on an almost new city. The town had lengthened, had broadened; old houses had been torn down and were replaced with modern ones; business, instead of being confined to one street, had fine trade on others, and the saw and hatchet gave sweet music to the enterprising and ambitious listeners. The Tevis School on the slope had undergone many changes and is now an object of beauty. Then there is the Stewart school property having changed ownership, Rev. J. E. Nunn becoming the possessor. This building has been enlarged and beautified until it is now one of the largest and most attractive school buildings in Kentucky. We noticed new mills, water, electric and gas plants, and new stores by the score. Pausing to consider why it was thus, we did not have to inquire of many before we learned it was due to waterworks and increased railroad facilities.

We have recited the above as an object lesson. If Shelbyville, minus the backing Mt. Sterling has from Eastern Kentucky, and with her disadvantages by being near a great city can prosper as she has and is now, what would Mt. Sterling do with more railroad facilities and with waterworks. The Council, if they would show a public spirit must again present the question of constructing waterworks, and if the people would invest in what would improve our town and make it a great city they would vote for and construct them.

Again, thousands of dollars are wasted annually, we say wasted, because it is nothing less, by paying out enormous freight bills. This can be avoided, and our people have an opportunity at this very moment. Judge H. Clay McKee has a firm that will give us another connection, and it is with us to have it. By investing a small amount, a subscription can be raised which will induce these people to run a line from Mt. Sterling, connecting with the L. and E. at some point between Clay City and L. and E. Junction. Such a connection would produce competition, and in a few years by such freight savings stockholders would be reimbursed for the amount subscribed, and yet would hold first mortgage for money invested in bonds of the road. The proposition is a fair one, and the people should not even wait for Judge McKee to call on them, but at once go to him and subscribe until the needed amount is raised. We are anxious for a railroad connection producing competition, and will continue to discuss the matter until we have the same freights as Winchester, Lexington, and Louisville. Then we would know what prospect, what hustle in Mt. Sterling would mean.

Before the Democracy we have given both the preamble and resolutions of what we are pleased to term an anti-Goebel meeting Court day in this month. In all closely fought battles there are dissatisfied elements. We had those characters here. They had a favorite, and were enthusiastic in his interests. They believed he could win; that justice favored his nomination, but alas their expectations went to pieces like waves on the breakers. Goebel's perfect organization was more than a match for the outnumbering and opposing forces. Like ex-Governor Proctor Knott, in his contest with Col. Thomas Jones, he gained point by point until he cleared the board. Longmore, in his contest with Mat Adams for the nomination for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, did the same thing. It was organization against numbers, and the results were no more than what might have been expected.

There are dissatisfied forces. They remind us of similar forces in 1896, who severed their connection with the Democratic party. The result of that new organization is fresh in our minds.

By the Republicans captured Kentucky, and some of those who led these forces are willing to return and contribute of their powers to the success of the same party, with the same platform, they fought. Should not this be sufficient argument for the opposing forces of to-day?

In the preamble adopted at the anti-Goebel meeting Court day there were some serious charges, but it matters not how many, or if all of these charges are true, any attempt at correction would be disastrous to the party. A division would be party loss.

There are two platforms and two parties.

Democrats have taken position on the tariff, it is positive. Free silver is a plank in their platform, and on this they are pronounced. They, in their opposition to the Republican party become opposed to concentrated capital in its effort to further crush the laborer. The trusts and combines of to-day are our foes, and their legal existence was created by the Republican party.

We know the dissatisfied element are yet susceptible to reason, and we also know if they, in their madness, will consider for one single moment they will recognize the powers forcing this issue between Democrats. On the train a few days ago a minister appealed to my moral proclivities, and asked how, as a religious and moral man, I could support Mr. Goebel. I asked him what he knew about Mr. Goebel's morals, and he said now you know he is a man of bad morals, but I informed him I knew nothing of the kind; that a gentleman intimate with him in the legislature had informed me that he did not drink, that he did not chew, smoke, gamble, etc.; that he was an honorable man. Besides, suppose Mr. Goebel was an immoral man, it would not effect the tariff question, free silver, trusts, or any of these great questions, and for me I will vote for the Democratic platform, and if Mr. Goebel or any other living man is on it I can't help it, for the platform reflects my political principles. I accept it; I vote for it, I place the stencil under the rooster. This was too much for the preacher, and he here exploded, and showed he was against the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and failed to take position against the great money powers in their efforts to dominate the world. I tell you my readers this moral question is only a scarecrow, hatched for a purpose, and who would say knowingly Mr. Goebel's morals are not as good as those of any candidate on the Republican ticket? Returning from our depression we have only this to say, in choosing our course it will be either in support of the Democratic party or Republican. Men are not in it. There are no middle grounds, and the man who undertakes to organize another party is playing to the hand of the Republican party, and had as well place his vote under that log cabin. We won't tear down that great Jeffersonian structure, neither will we in any way become party to such a crime.

W. Jennings Bryan is a dangerous man to his opponents; because he is a great man, with his heart close to the people. His interests are theirs, and as it is with Mr. Bryan so it is with Senator Goebel. His political foes in the Republic can partly realize his powers, and it is they who are adding fuel to the flames. Mr. Bryan is moving right into the Presidency, and so is Mr. Goebel into the Governor's chair. Republicans in efforts to dissipate Democrats strengthen our cords, solidify our forces, force to renewed labor, more powerful organization, and make an exhibit of their weakness and flight.

Bryan Written to Urey Woodson.

In a letter to Urey Woodson National Democratic Committeeman for Kentucky, Mr. Bryan expresses deep regret at the bitterness which characterizes the gubernatorial contest; he declines to discuss the merits of the candidates, but thinks that the election of Goebel will not endanger the success of Democratic principles enunciated in the Chicago platform. He says a Republican Senator may be elected if the Democratic ticket is defeated, and if the Senate is Republican cannot be restored or trusted overthrown, even if the Democrats have the Presidency and the House. He says: "The cause of Democracy will be injured by the defeat of a Democratic ticket nominated upon a platform which unqualifiedly endorses the Chicago platform."

A PHONETIC ALPHABET.
Invented by Corea in the Fifteenth Century.

Corea boasts of the invention of a pure phonetic alphabet. Of course it was not the first, but it was original with her, and therefore no less creditable. The invention of this alphabet is the last of three great protesta which Corea has made against the cumbersome of the Chinese written character. King Se-Jo, early in the fifteen century, determined that the people must have a phonetic alphabet, and a college of scholars was convened, with the distinguished Song Sammun at its head, to devise an alphabet. Looking about for a model, they found nothing like a phonetic alphabet, except in the Tibetan books which had been brought from China and deposited in the monasteries of Corea. But Tibetan, like Sanskrit and like the Semitic languages, is consonantal in its character. The consonant is the foundation, and the vowel is simply the bridge that spans the interval between consonant and consonant. Song Sammun's genius is demonstrated in his recognition of the fact that this is wrong, and that the vowel is the basis of all articulate speech. He therefore divided the symbols into two classes—"mother" and "child"—the vowel being the mother and the consonant the child. This was not only absolutely original with him, but it was absolutely scientific. The Tibetan furnished the basis for the Korean consonants—not the finished Tibetan of to-day, but the singular character and in the Tibetan Buddhist books of Corea. For the vowels they turned to the ancient seal character of China, and from its simplest radicals picked out six, which became the Korean vowels. The combination of the letters in the syllable was, so to speak, triangular.

In simplicity the Korean characters are unsurpassed. Tradition says that the inventor took them all from the Korean door, which consists of a combination of horizontal and oblique latitudinal and in truth this could be done.—Harper's Magazine.

FACTS AND OBSERVATIONS.

A Trip to Beattyville, Clay City Etc.

During the recent term of Circuit Court, Trimble of the Advocate made a short stay at Beattyville reaching the town on Tuesday morning. The attendance was not large. On the preceding Saturday the Republican convention had been held at which time a very large crowd was present, and the convention at Lexington claimed the attention of a great many more. We met Prof. Batson, of Kentucky Wesleyan College, Winchester, Robt. Riddle and J. B. White, of living, the Court officers and county officials. Judge Redwine of Louisville Convention notably, presided. As was expected, he justified his rulings in that convention. At this town is located one of the large lumber mills operated by Day & Swan, the bark and coal mines appeared to be the public enterprises of the town. Trade was quiet and crops in the neighborhood were not flourishing.

As we returned we met on the train Mr. Elijah Patrick, of Magoffin county. Although he is 71 years old and the infirmities of age are taking hold, he was enroute to Lexington where he assumed the Republican Assembly with a speech. He said that since he had been reading the Advocate he had become a stronger Republican. We replied that, if the paper was doing so much service every Republican in his country ought to be a subscriber. We were pleased to have his commendation of the moral and religious tone of the Advocate, and of the good we are doing. With these he spoke of his mother who is 92 years old, whose memory is unimpaired.

Another Resignation In President McKinley's Cabinet.

LAND, STOCK AND CROPS.

Secretary of War Alger Wednesday tendered his resignation to take effect "at the pleasure of the President." Although it has been generally expected that the resignation would come before the end of the year, it had not been looked for so soon, and the announcement that it had been handed to the President caused surprise at Washington. The President's formal acceptance was made public on Friday and Alger's resignation will take effect August 1.

CANCER.

Doctors Divided on the Bacterial Theory of the Disease.

When bacteria were found to be the cause of one infectious disease after another, it was thought that cancer might be included in the list, and several enthusiastic scientists isolated a bacterium which they dedicated to the use of this disease; but the flood of experiments that followed proved that it was quite incapable of causing cancer in animals or man, and it was relegated to the uninteresting position of a non-pathogenic germ. The bacterial theory appearing untenable, they themselves a little nearer when they advanced the idea of a protozoan, which name they held as being sufficiently wide to include any organism of the animal world that might be found as an exciting cause. The closer study of parasitic diseases of lower animals, which has accompanied medical studies of the past few years, added a certain plausibility to this idea.

The present aspect of this cancer problem, as presented by Santelle, Roncal, Bra and Plünner, seems to have by analogy something more of truth than what has gone before. That the germ of infection is a vegetable parasite of the class known as yeasts, or molds, in a wider sense, may be possible, for the nature of the irritative process following infection is analogous to certain forms of new growths that are prevalent throughout the vegetable kingdom. There is a large class of fungoid parasitic diseases in plants that have tumorous excrescences developed. These are known to be caused by abnormal development of adjacent tissues, and slowly affect the life processes of the plant. The organisms that are the exciting cause of these diseases are of the same general class of fungi that are now being held the cause of carcinoma, and the gradual impairment of nutrition and spread of the growths are strikingly similar in both classes. Just what the outcome may be is still a matter of uncertainty.—N.Y. Medical Record.

 Tap, tap, all day at the head machine until the head throbs with every tap. And when the machine stops for a day or two, the head still goes on—more than any other class of women in the large towns of America. Clerks needs to closely watch the health of the organ particularly. For the general health will be disturbed if it is not.

As the local health of the delicate, woman organs is disturbed, with irregularities that will cause pain in the body, both in the wife, mother and child misery. The happiness of the future life of the wife and mother may be entirely ruined by neglect of the health at the critical period.

Women confined in offices, shut out from necessary exercise will find a faith in Dr. Price's Favorite Prescription, so well suited to the woman's functions and so strengthens the delicate organs that pain from these causes will be absolutely done away with and future health be entirely secured.

There is no opium, cocaine or other narcotic in "Favorite Prescription," which contains it. It contains alcohol, whisky or other intoxicants.

"I am an week I did not have breath to walk across my room," writes Miss Mabel of Providence, Calvary Co., Ky. "My periods were prolonged and the loss of blood very excessive. I had great pain in the abdomen, which would last for several hours. I did not gain strength, nor did I feel like eating. I was very weak and nervous all the time. I was given Dr. Price's Favorite Prescription, which I did and before I had taken two bottles of it I could work all day. I have been well ever since. I have never had a return of this trouble since, and never had a return of any trouble, because I know they saved my life."

LOSSES FROM LIGHTNING.

About Five Persons in a Million Are Struck.

It has been playfully said that the chance of a man's being struck by lightning is only one in thirty millions, and that his chance of recovery when struck is about the same, yet there is a general and perennial interest in the subject. The jest is converted by statistical facts, for the chief of the weather bureau of the department of agriculture has certified from the records of his office that the ratio of deaths by lightning to total population of the United States, assuming the latter to be 68,000,000, is annually a little over five persons in a million. The regions of greatest danger from lightning stroke appear to be in Wyoming, Montana, Colorado and North Dakota, though no region is exempt. It is some comfort to those of us who live in cities to be officially assured that "danger from lightning stroke is least in closely-built cities and greatest in the open country."

From the figures compiled last year it appears that about one-third of all the cases of fatal lightning stroke on live stock in the fields occurred in the immediate vicinity of wire fences; indeed, there is evidence that in some cases lightning struck the fence at some distance from the place where the stock was killed. The statistics, incomplete as they doubtless are, show that the farmers of the country lost by lightning alone during 1898 live stock valued at about $50,000.

During the same time there were over 1,800 cases of destructive lightning strokes on buildings, causing a money loss of about $1,500,000. Three hundred and sixty-seven lives were lost and 494 persons were more or less severely injured by lightning stroke. The killed were in various conditions of environment—in dwellings, barns, under trees and in the open. More people were killed under trees than in the open. It is not safe to seek shelter from a thunderstorm under a tree.

Chief Moore observes that it would be of manifest advantage to know the precise character of the ordinary lightning flash—whether it approximates a steady flow or partakes of an oscillatory movement. Better knowledge than we now possess of the kind of object most frequently struck, whether tree, or dwelling house or barn, might be the means of saving life. If, for example, certain trees are more apt to be struck by lightning than others, they should be avoided as a place of shelter in a thunder-storm. There are, also, other lines of inquiry in which greater precision of methods and devices might yield valuable returns—Albany Argus.

IT IS NOT THEFT.

Important Decision Regarding Stealing of Electricity in Germany.

In December last the provincial court at Elberfeld sentenced three merchants each to one day's imprisonment for stealing from an electric current. The men had secretly attached a wire to a cable laid in the house where they lodged, and thus got their room lighted by electricity for nothing.

The court decided that electricity possessed the essential properties of a criminal object, but this was appealed against and the case has finally reached the senate of the supreme court of the empire.

The senate holds that the judgment of the provincial court must be quashed, for the reason that those properties are wanting in electricity which would be necessary to constitute it a movable object in the sense of the law. In the sentence it is stated that electricity must be reckoned as one of the energies of nature, like sound, light, etc.

As the law provides only against the theft of movable bodies, it is inapplicable in the case. Damage to property can also not be pleaded, for this requires that the substance of the object must be affected. It cannot again be said that a property has been withdrawn from the wire, for electricity is not one of the properties of copper wire.

These are, therefore, as mentioned above, come to the unanimous conclusion that, with the law in its present state, tapping an electric current is not theft.—Berlin Cor. of London Leader.

China has still the old-fashioned system of private letter carrying. Letter shops are to be found in every town. If he has a letter to send, the Chinaman goes to a letter shop and bargains with the keeper thereof. He pays two-thirds of the cost, leaving the receiver to pay the rest on delivery.

INJUSTICE OF HISTORY.

A Great Explorer Forgotten for Over a Century.

The explorer may be lost only in wilderness or in ocean wastes, but also in the depths of archives or out-of-the-way corners of libraries, where his unpublished records are stowed away, forgotten, buried almost beyond human ken until some delving antiquarian turns over the musty and yellow pages and becomes a discoverer himself. Here is an illustration of two of this interesting fact.

We know that the smallest of the continents, Australia, is separated from the second largest island in the world, New Guinea, by Torres strait. The famous Capt. Cook thought he had made a great discovery in 1770 when he sailed through this strait and thus proved that New Guinea was separated from Australia, though on the map the island was shown as a part of the continent. The fact is, however, that more than 150 years earlier the forgotten Spanish pilot Torres had made this same discovery, and the Spaniards had so long concealed it as a state secret in their archives at Manila that they had forgotten all about it themselves. One day late in the last century, when England was at war with Spain and had seized Manila, an inquisitive named Dalrymple improved the chance to pore around among the archives, and his most interesting discovery was this record of Torres' work. If the English had not been masters of Manila for awhile the truth about this important discovery might have been left for us to reveal. But the laurels were finally given to the man who had won them, and this is how it happened that, generations after his death, the waters which separate the continent from the island came to be known as Torres strait.—Harper's Round Table.

Judge Pryor on Goebel.
"I am the writer met Judge Wm. Prior, than whom no man stands higher in Kentucky. In the course of the conversation it was suggested that, as the candidature would each develop considerable strength, there might be a dead lock in the convention, and in that event, Le (Pryor) might be chosen as the Democratic candidate for Governor, and that he could be elected by an overwhelming majority. He promptly replied: "I am for Senator Tice. I know him, and, therefore, I am for him. I had rather see him Governor than be Governor myself. Such a man is needed. He would make an able Governor."—Paris-Kentuck-Citizen.

RUNNING SORE ON HIS ANKLE.

After Six Years of Intense Suffering, Promptly Cured

By S. S. S. entire circulation in a deformed condition. They constantly sap away the vitality. In every case the poison must be eliminated from the blood, and no amount of external treatment can have any effect.

There is no uncertainty about the merits of S. S. S.; every claim made for it is backed up strongly by convincing testimony of those who have been cured by it and know of its virtues by experience.

Mr. L. J. Clark, of Orange Courthouse, Va., writes:

"For six years I had an obstinate, running ulcer on my ankle, which at times caused me intense suffering. I was so disabled for a long while that I was wholly unfit for business. Once I had tried various remedies, but did not do me good. I then tried various blood remedies, without the least benefit. S. S. S. was so highly recommended that I concluded to try it, and the effect was wonderful. It has completely removed the sore of the disease and forced the poison out, and I was soon completely cured." BEAUTIFUL WEDDING GIFT.

Fit for a Princess It Was Given to a Girl Who Worked in a Mill.

A girl who for nine years has worked in a certain Norristown mill was recently married and, from the carding, spinning and weaving overalls, became a present as a mate and rare and beautiful as ever graced the nuptials of a princess, the men gave her three handkerchiefs, each of them woven with a picture of the girl as she could be known to the ceiling, for the headband, woven of thistleweed. This stuff is common on the Norristown meadows and on the plant, or floating slowly through the air, it seems like a ball of cotton in full potentiality.

The gathering of it is a task, and it is romantic to think of the three overseers, corpulent and gray, scurrying in the young girl's honor over the green fields after the floating balls on pleasant Sunday mornings. But to card, spin, and weave, and then to lay the stuff on bobbins and to make a warp of it—these were the real tasks, and there were months of failure and despair before they were achieved.

Now, especially the girls in textile shops, are anxious to reward the men for all their trouble. A square yard of the beautiful, shimmering, silver-gray stuff could be crushed even by the thumb and finger into a ball no bigger than a pea.

AMERICANS IN LONDON.

Statistical Says That They Spend $10,000,000 Annually in the World's Metropolis.

Some London statistician announces that Americans spend in London more than any other nation. He declares that the greatest part of this comes from the Americans living there permanently or for some months at a time, and not from the transient visitors who stay for only a few days. The American entertainments are said to be looked upon as a regular feature of the season and play an important part in its brilliancy. Shopkeepers find that Americans are generally more liberal in their dealings than English people of the same wealth and position.

Londoners are residing permanently in London to the number of 20,000. There are nearly as many more during the average summer, although 4 years of expositions or spectacles like this figure is much increased.

New Yorkers who recently returned from London were surprised to find a small number of their fellow-citizens who seemed to take up their residence there. The number of New Yorkers among the Americans who live permanently in London is said to be disproportionately small. The majority of the incorporated citizens of the United States are said to come from the middle west.

STONE HOTELS.

They Are Said to Burn Longer Than Those Built Entirely of Wood.

Smallpox Scare Over at Frankfort.
The report now given out is that there is not now a case of smallpox at Frankfort, and that all restrictions against public gatherings have been withdrawn.

Health for ten cents. Cascarets make the bowel and kidneys naturally, destroy microbes, cure headache, biliousness and constipation. All druggists.

To know that you know what you know, and that you do not know what you do not know, is true wisdom.

Considerable how many huge hotels, constructed entirely of wood, and often in a more or less exposed situation, are scattered about the country in places where security from fire depends almost wholly on the watchfulness of proprietors and guests. It is indeed, remarkable that fatal conflagrations are not more frequent in these areas. A matter of fact, it is the only hotel that most often is the scene of a great catastrophe, not the big frame structure at mountain or beach resorts, though there at first thought, would seem to be more exposed to danger for flames, says the New York Times.

It must be remembered, however, that the difference between the urban and rural hotels is more apparent than real. Stone brick outside walls give no insulation, but the interior walls with wooden floors laid on wooden beams, and with scallings covered with lath and plaster for partitions. As one of the officials said in discussing the tragedy at the Windsor, the winter hotels are safe from fire. The stone and certain few except kitchen fires, and their structure is such that every inmate is moved to more carefulness than residents in the soldier-looking buildings in the city think necessary.

"TEDDY" IS A SAD BIRD NOW.

Well Meaning Bald Eagle That Served as Rough Riders' Mascot Has Mete Sore Death.

After a well-meaning bald eagle has served as a mascot for the rough riders and vanquished every other inhabitant of his cage since the war, it comes hard to be thrashed by two bald-headed Indians who have been holding Cuba in quenched defiance at the hands of Spaniards. And doubly hard is it to be used as an animated mop by still another pair of shiny-pated fighters says the New York Press.

The same reason why "Teddy," the eagle who brought back to Col. Roosevelt's regiment, now makes his bed on a hard rock near the ground, while his four conquerors look down on him from the highest perch of the eagle cage in the Central Park zoo. "Teddy" was captured in Cuba and kept in Spain, and Smith introduced a pair of bald eagles named the "Heavenly Twins."

They proceeded, by working together, to make "Teddy" hang his head in humiliation, and another pair that was brought in later, to do the same. For the once proud bird, "Teddy" fought hard, but he had no chance desired.

WAYS OF DODGING WRITS.

Officers of the Law Balked by Clever Scoundrels.

Two seasons back a laughable scene occurred at Clacton. A lawyer's clerk, who had instructions to serve a writ on a young fellow, had after much trouble traced his quarry to that seashore resort, where he found him enjoying the pleasure of a bath. Being pressed for time he resolved to execute his commission forthwith, so engaging another machine he undressed, and with the wril between his teeth, swam after the boy, who was leisurely making his way towards a boat, where a friend was seated.

Chancing to look round B—— espied his pursuer, whose errand, from prior acquaintance, he divined, and increasing his pace gained the boat some ten yards in advance. Judging that he must soon return, the clerk slowly swam back to mount guard over his clothes, but what was his chagrin when he saw B—— dressed in the friend's flannels rowing the boat to a convenient landing place, while the friend was making his way to the machine wherein were the delinquent's clothes, having donned which he strolled quietly away.

Last summer at one of our southern watering places a trip to Bonlogne was advertised. Among the passengers was a certain H—— S——, who, knowing himself to be closely pursued by an emissary of the law, armed with a writ, had taken refuge on board only to find that the man he most desired to avoid had joined the party at the last moment. He managed, however, to escape service till the boat was fairly on its way, when, finding himself closely pressed, he sprang overboard, and being a strong swimmer made for a boat in the vicinity. The captain, seeing that he was safe, continued his passage, bearing with him the luckless purser.

Mr. Wyndham Flitter's escape from the balloon, as described by Albert Smith in "The Pothole Legacy," had its counterpart some years since at one of the late Mr. Simons' balloon ascents. As the aeronaut was on the point of starting a gentleman rushed up, hurriedly paid the fee demanded for the trip, sprung into the car, and was borne aloft from the baffled clutches of the law which was close upon him.

Some two years before imprisonment for debt was abolished a maniacal on view at Sheffield had for one of its attractions a den of performing lions, whose tamer was wont at every performance to invite any of the spectators to accompany him into the cage. On one occasion on making his usual overture a man, forcing his way through the crowd, closed with the tamer, and was admitted into the presence of the lions just as two men had and exhausted with running appeared upon the scene. In his safe refuge he remained until the performance was concluded, when, whispering something in the tamer's ear, at the same time dropping a hand-some document into his hand, a door at the rear was opened. Through this he sprang, and was away ere the sheriff's officers—for such the two men were—could realize that they had been balked of their capture.—London Bits.

THRIFTY WESTERN DAMSEL.

Shrewd Girl Was This Who Bought the Funeral Wreath.

A spirit of thrift was shown by a young woman who entered a car with sundry boxes and bundles. Another young person came in at the next station and recognized her:

"Oh, my, who is to be married?" "Nobody, and me last of all."

"Then what are the flowers for?"

"A funeral; our teacher died, and we girls put together to get this wreath."

"Poor thing, did she know she was going to die?"

"I don't think so;" then, after a pause, she added, cheerfully, "but she does by this time," all being said in a most unconscious way.

"How much was the wreath?"

"Two dollars and sixty cents. I only had two twenty-five."

"Did you pay the difference?"

"Dear, no. I made him give me for two dollars, so I saved my own quarter I put in, but I'm going to make the girls think I paid two sixty."

"Well; that's right; the wear and tear is worth a quarter, surely."

DOING POLICE DUTY.

Arthur Fitzpatrick Now Located at San Fernando.

Will Remain There During the Rainy Season.

San Fernando Isles De Lazon, June 5, 1899.

Mrs. Alice Fitzpatrick,
Mt. Sterling, Ky., U. S. A.
My Dear Mother—I received your most loving and affectionate letter under date of April 14th some few days ago and would have answered sooner but had no opportunity to do so. I am indeed glad to hear that you are all well and enjoying yourselves.

We are now located at San Fernando, a large town about forty-five miles from Manila. We expect to stay here during the rainy season (four months); are quartered in a large Spanish building and enjoying a much needed rest as we have just arrived after thirty-three days of hard campaigning under Gen. Lawton. I was indeed very sorry to hear of Mr. Adam Baum's death. I think of you folks at home often and would like so much to drop in and see you. Hope you will all keep well and enjoy yourselves. The weather is growing warmer every day, and it rains nearly night as the rainy season is close now. We fare very well now, but of course when we are out on an expedition we do not get much to eat, but cannot complain now. We get fresh meat and bread every day now from Manila.

Gen. Lawton left us last week and Sunday started to advance upon Paranaque, one of the Insurgent strongholds. I have not as yet heard how successful he has been.

Give all the folks my best regards and tell them I would like to be with them.

We have started a regiment of natives of the higher class and think it will be a success as they are very anxious to quell the insurrection. The non-commissioned officers of each company of the 22nd Regiment have been chosen to lead them.

We get plenty of tropical fruit here, bananas, mangoes, oranges, pine apples and coconuts. Our regiment is doing police duty here. We do not have to do any outpost duty or marching, nothing but guarding inside the city. We have fine water here. The well water is good; we also have a fine cistern at the depot so of course we do not have to suffer on that account. As I have written you all the news for this time, I must close. Hoping to hear from you soon, I am as ever

Your most loving son,

ARTHUR.

P. S.—Tell Mrs. Cox and family to write and also tell Uncle Sam and Aunt Lou to drop me a line and give all the news & I will answer. How is Tom Greenwater getting along.

Good-bye.

Owing to a Rush of Business

Will Remain a Few Days Longer.

It is my specialty to fit glasses in such a manner that they relieve the extra strain placed on the eyes. I believe that you can see with ease and comfort, thus preserving the eye. In examining the eye only the latest improved methods and instruments are used.

Physicians especially are invited to call and investigate my methods of correcting errors of refraction, strabismus, amblyopia, nervousness, irritability, insomnia, vertigo, nervous prostration and the seeming stupor induced by the use of opium. The eye is easily affected by a curvature caused by an abnormal curvature of the cornea or crystalline lens or to an irregularity in the refracting media of the eye, and is easily cured by the application of the proper glasses.

Ninety per cent. of the people over 40 years of age need glasses and 90 per cent. of the 90 need them for distance.

Glasses are not always given to improve eye-sight, but to relieve strain in the eyes. Thousands of eyes are ruined annually. Seven persons out of ten have neither eyes alike, and one out of twenty is slightly deformed. The secret of fitting each eye separately. Special attention given to any inequality that may exist between the two eyes.

Optical science has made rapid advances within the last few years. The correct adaption of spectacles has been greatly improved.

The optician who thoroughly understands his business, realizes fully that in adjusting glasses for his customers he is treating him for his eyes and not his whole organ, where the slightest error may result only, while if he does his work well, he not only gives comfort and ease to the patient, but many instances restores the sight.

Special care should be taken in selecting the first pair of spectacles a person wears.

Fitting children with spectacles a special care do not neglect your children's eyes.

Difficult questions in regard to eyes clearly answered.

positions. We shall expect good reports from Mr. Cooper.

A Burnt Child Dreads the Fire.

The following is the experience of a well known and beloved lady of our city: "I had about made up my mind to have any eye fished by Dr. J. Harries, when a gentleman came to my house last week and persuaded me that he could fit my eyes as well. I took my old glasses out of my frames and put new ones in and now I wish I had my old ones, for I cannot see as well with the new ones, as with the old ones. He took out and he has my money." This is intended as a hint to my friends.

M'KEE.

Moses McKee died at the home of his sister, Miss Alesia, in this city, on Friday, July 21, 1890, in his fifty-ninth year. The burial service was conducted by Rev. H. D. Clark on Saturday afternoon at McMechain.

His sickness began October 29, 1898 since which time he had left home only twice, going down town. For the last five months he had not left his room. During these months he was a great sufferer. Patiently he bore affliction until he fell asleep in Christ. He was a member of the Christian church,
He was born and reared in this country.
His wife died nine years ago leaving three children, two of whom are living; Frank, in Julian Kansas, and Miss Lena, who is at the Widows' and Orphans'
Home of the Christian church, at Louisville, Ky. His death occurred on Saturday

The Excursion.

Those attractive bills for the Torrent excursion, Wednesday, Aug. 2, were printed in the ADVOCATE Job rooms.
The managers of this excursion have advised us that at least 500 people would go to Torrent on that day. It would not astonish us if they have ever more than that number. The public appreciates these extras on such occasions, and any others as to that.

The Old Fellows, so accustomed to walk on the road, have their hands in. The crowd will be their guides and the first appearance of them will be relieved by a glass of ice-water or lemonade. These people know exactly how to run an excursion so that their guests will be comfortable and get out of it all they can.

Our town will appear deserted on that day, but we can stand it for so short a time and for so noble a purpose.

Plot to Escape from the Penitentiary Failed.

Nine desperate men, who had been sent to the penitentiary for long terms or life, had plotted to murder the guards and escape from the show factory on Monday at noon.

A short time before the hour for the retrial Col. Eph. Allard, Warden of the prison, who had been forewarned of the plot, called the ring-leaders out, one by one, informed them of the discovery of the plot, disarmed them of all knives, bludgeons, &c., concealed upon their persons, and had them locked in separate dungeons—Frankfort Daily.

suit against the lodge. He was suspended by a rope which was fastened to the ceiling, and it broke, letting him fall, injuring his spine.

will take pleasure in furnishing those interested.

the popular young shoe merchant, and Miss Alene R. Thomas, the lovely and accomplished daughter of Mr.
Henry O. Thomas, will be surprised to learn that they were married in ship will be decided at Baden, Austria, early in August, and will bring togeth-year, as it will hold its own among the great trotters of the season. It was rated at Detroit at three heats in 2:06. Hi-third heat in 2:10 was timed by outsiders, including Geors, Thor and Roy Miller in 2:09; and Disease of the Optic Nerve

Is the cause of more blindness than all other diseases combined.

It is a mistake for persons to suppose that they can tell when their optic nerve is affected.

One should be surprised that any of these vendors have any knowledge of such a disease.

A great deal of the blindness in this world could therefore be prevented if every person, young and old, would have his eyes examined frequently by an intelligent person, educated in that line, and should be a graduate of Medicine.
